Mackinac Island has been a sacred and significant place for Anishinaabek people for centuries. Oral tradition, supported by archaeological evidence, speaks of Native settlement dating back to 1000 A.D. From this point forward, Mackinac Island occupied a central place in the Anishinaabek world. The exhibition “Agatha's Mackinac” tells the Anishinaabek story of Mackinac Island from pre-European contact to today through the experiences and relationships of Agatha Biddle, an Odawa woman.

From about 1780 to 1835 Mackinac Island was the principal summer depot and supply center for the upper Great Lakes fur trade. Pelts gathered at Mackinac were shipped to eastern United States and European markets. During the golden age of the American Fur Company, great wealth was produced on Market Street. Sites include the American Fur Company Store & Dr. Beaumont Museum, Benjamin Blacksmith Shop, and the McGulpin House. All are included with a Fort Mackinac ticket.

The Richard and Jane Manoogian Mackinac Art Museum allows visitors to experience fine and decorative arts inspired by Mackinac through the ages, and allow budding artists a chance to complete their own Mackinac-related art in the Kid’s Art Studio. New for 2020 - a juried exhibition to the theme of “A Day in the Park.”

Open May 4–October 11, 2020
Be inspired. Nowhere else does such a rare and exceptional collection of Mackinac-related art and photography come together to tell Mackinac's story. In complement to the natural beauty of Mackinac Island, The Richard and Jane Manoogian Mackinac Art Museum allows visitors to experience fine and decorative arts inspired by Mackinac through the ages, and allow budding artists a chance to complete their own Mackinac-related art in the Kid's Art Studio. New for 2020 - a juried exhibition to the theme of “A Day in the Park.”

Open June 6–August 22, 2020
