Portion of M-185 to be Closed May 17

MACKINAC ISLAND, MICH. — A roughly two mile stretch of M-185, from the Devil’s Kitchen area to British Landing, will be closed on Monday, May 17.

Construction to finish paving and securing M-185 after high water and erosion damaged several portions of the roadway is currently underway. The closed section of road will have several large construction vehicles moving throughout it. Barricades will be placed at either end. Going around a barricade is exceedingly dangerous, and people found going around the barricade are subject to a ticket and fine.

Visitors are encouraged to ride bicycles around the east side of the island, toward Arch Rock, and turn up British Landing road once reaching the construction area.

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) is investing about $6 million to rebuild M-185, addressing high-water and wave erosion damage on the shoreline. Roughly 4 miles of the highway around the island (the only state highway in Michigan that does not regularly allow automobile traffic) sustained ongoing damage that escalated in fall 2019 and winter 2020.

The project will repair armor stone along M-185, primarily along the eastern and northern shore of the island from north of Dennis O. Cawthorne Shoreline Trail to British Landing. One location on the western shore, near Devil's Kitchen, will also be repaired. Work also includes pavement repairs to previously washed out and damaged pavement.

Mackinac State Historic Parks and MDOT will continue to send out releases as more information becomes available on M-185 closures throughout the summer.
